Artists, dancers, writers and musicians from around the world celebrate the 2016 legalization of clotheslines across California with three outdoor events in Riverside. Come to Casa Blanca Library on April 16 to experience their work, meet the artists and join in the discussion about art inspired by the everyday chore of doing laundry.

Can Clothes hung out to dry be beautiful? meaningful? What does laundry say about our relationship to the environment and to other people? What about relations between men and women, or across cultures or generations? Come join the discussion. Participate in a "story circle." See how the public's "laundry stories" at the March events at Arlanza and April exhibition t La Sierra have inspired new art and performances.
